This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

SINCE 1848, the date of our last printed Catalogue, the Library has increased from six thousand to sixteen thousand volumes; and, although a hastily prepared Supplement was printed in 1851, the titles of nearly six thousand volumes, the latest and most valuable additions to the Library, were not to be found on any printed Catalogue. For more than a year, the Catalogue of 1848 has been out of print; and, for several months, the entire edition of the Supplement of 1851 has been exhausted. Hence the preparation of a new and complete Catalogue seemed to be an imperative necessity; and this measure was strongly recommended in the Annual Report of the last Board of Government.

At the monthly meeting of the present Board of Government in April last, a Committee was appointed with full powers to make the necessary arrangements for the preparation and printing of a new Catalogue. A plan proposed to the Committee by the Librarian was accepted, and to him was committed its execution.

The plan of the work will be best understood by an examination of the Catalogue itself. It will be seen that short titles have been adopted; that each work has been catalogued under its author and under its subject, and works of fiction have been placed under their titles as well as authors. The whole being arranged in one alphabetical series, a work can be easily found, if either its author, subject, or title is known.

Whatever advantages other systems of cataloguing may have in particular instances, no other system appears to combine so many advantages for a popular circulating library like ours.

The titles of such works as have been added to the Library since the printing of the Catalogue was commenced, and too late to admit of their appearing in the alphabetical series, have been placed in the ADDENDA.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

THE MERCANTILE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION originated at a meeting of merchants' clerks, and others, held at the Commercial Coffee House, corner of Batterymarch and Milk Streets, March 11, 1820. The meeting was numerously attended; and Mr. Theodore Lyman, jun. (afterwards mayor of Boston), was called upon to preside.

The better intellectual and moral condition of young men engaged as merchants' clerks, was the object which had called together these persons; and for this end a Committee, consisting of Messrs. John G. Gibson, Samuel A. Otis, Nathl. A. Barrett, Thomas Gorham, James T. Blanchard, Lynde M. Walter, Charles J. Johnson, Edward Codman, Henry A. Davis, and Samuel W. Pomeroy, jun., was appointed who subsequently reported a list of Rules and Regulations for an Institution to be named the Mercantile Library.* The government was vested in a Board of seven Directors, a Secretary, and a Treasurer.

The original Rules required that "one of the Directors should be in the employment of a dry-goods' merchant;" and, at a later date, a vote authorizing the appointment of a Committee was passed with a similar proviso.

The terms of subscription were two dollars annually; and each subscriber, on becoming such, was required to present to the Library "one or more volumes, either in biography, history, voyages, travels, or works relative to mercantile subjects;" a condition which was afterwards abolished, the books given being generally of a worthless character.

A room was soon after procured in Merchants' Hall, corner of Congress and Water Streets, where, on the 24th of April following, the Library was formally opened.

Active exertions were now made to increase its available resources; and, before the close of a year, two hundred and twenty members were enrolled, many of the leading newspapers and magazines of the day were received, and the library numbered eleven hundred volumes.

But these flattering prospects were of short duration. The history of the Institution for the next fifteen years is, with but few exceptions, a history of uninterrupted reverses.

A Report, made in 1829, stated that there were then but eighty-one members; that the funds were exhausted, and there were many unsettled demands. The Investigating Committee also stated that the financial aspect of the Treasurer's Report seemed "an emphatic earnest of a process of ejectment, and a writ of attachment on books and chattels." The following year, owing in part to donations of money from its friends among the merchants, but chiefly to an arrangement which had been entered into with the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge, whereby the members were privileged to attend the lectures of that society at one-half the usual price, affairs wore a more cheerful aspect, and the Directors reported the Association out of debt, and with two hundred and thirty members.

During the next two years, however, the number of members fell off slightly; and, in 1832, but one hundred and seventy retained their membership. Again, in 1834, there occurred a critical era; for, during that year, the number of subscribers had diminished to eighty-eight, and so small was the income that only $20 had been appropriated during the year for the purchase of books.

Truly, this was an unpromising state of affairs; but even more disheartening reports than these were yet to be submitted. In September of the same year, a Committee, appointed to investigate the affairs of the Institution, reported that the whole number of members was but seventy-six; and they presented an estimated statement of the finances, by which it appeared that there would be a deficit, on the first of October, 1835, of $246.

Yet, during this period, the Institution was not wholly without assistance. Shortly after its formation, Messrs. Theodore Lyman, jun., Charles Williams, Israel Thorndike, Peter C. Brooks, and Andrew Brimmer, contributed to it $160; later in the year, Mr. Wm. Sturgis gave $30; and, in 1826, a period when but for timely pecuniary assistance the Institution must have been dissolved, about $400 were, upon the earnest solicitation of a Committee, subscribed, and added to the treasury. This sum, procured through the exertions of three active members, was given by "seventy-seven prominent individuals and firms, and in no one case exceeded the sum of $10."

In 1832, an Address to the merchants of Boston for a second time was prepared and published, setting forth the objects of the Institution, its then reduced circumstances, and soliciting aid. As the result of this measure, small sums were given to the amount of about $150, though by far the most important was the generous donation of Mr. Amos Lawrence, from whom the Directors received, in June, a friendly letter enclosing $100.

Encouraged by Mr. Lawrence's kindness, the Directors addressed him a lengthy letter of thanks in reply, in which they complained that the Society had suffered great neglect from the mercantile community. They stated, that, on the opening of their new Rooms, at No. 93, Washington Street (whither they had removed in December previous), invitations, personal and through the newspapers, were extended to the merchants to visit them on three evenings set apart for the purpose, but not a merchant appeared.

Mr. Lawrence soon afterwards presented to the Library thirty-nine volumes of valuable works, one of which, "Chalmers's Discourses on Christianity applied to the Commercial and Ordinary Affairs of Life," he especially recommended.

Nor does the Association seem to have been without its drawbacks and annoyances from the members themselves. Instances were not of unfrequent occurrence where resolutions of censure upon individual members were read, adopted, and placed upon the Records; and, in many cases, fines of small amount imposed. A case occurred in January, 1832, where two members were fined one dollar each for "improper conduct in the Library-Room, dishonorable to the Institution, and in violation of its By-Laws," which were afterwards reduced to twenty-five cents; "order, and not money," the minutes of the meeting say, "being the object of the fine." Indeed, these frequent fines formed no inconsiderable part of the income.

In 1831, the number of Directors was increased to thirteen;* and, in 1834, the office of President was created. A Vice-President was first chosen in 1835, and a Corresponding Secretary in 1844.

In October, 1833, the Association removed to 53, Washington Street; where, in 1836, the calamity of fire did great damage to the books and other property. Fortunately, however, insurance was recovered to the amount of $800; which sum was immediately applied to the replenishing of the Library. A removal was soon after made to more convenient rooms in Harding's Building, School Street.

But the leading members, in these dark days, were zealous, efficient, and self-sacrificing. They signed pledges binding themselves to procure new members, or, from their own resources, pay into the treasury the amount of subscription; they made loans to the Association; they subscribed money for books; they made personal application for aid; and they not unfrequently made donations themselves.

Where so many have labored, it were difficult certainly, and perhaps invidious, to particularize; yet Sampson and McCandish — both of whom have died beloved and respected — and Coates and Stearns and Atkins and Mather and Whipple and Cowdin and Haskell and Allen are names so inseparably connected with the very existence of the Society, that no historical account of it can be complete without them.

In the year 1835, the affairs of the Institution assumed a more favorable aspect. The establishment of the nucleus of a reserved fund in July of that year, and the introduction of the weekly Literary Exercises in 1836, seem to have infused into it new life and spirit.

* By the present Constitution, the number is eight.

Hosted by Google

The fund was started by a subscription from the Hon. Abbott Lawrence of $100, and amounted to $676. Small additions were made to it from year to year until 1845, when, immediately following the Act of Incorporation, Hon. Thomas H. Perkins made the Association the handsome donation of five shares in the Merchants' Exchange Company, equal to $2,500; and, in January following, Messrs. Abbott Lawrence, William Sturgis, Nathan Appleton, John Bryant, William Appleton, Amos Lawrence, John P. Cushing, and Samuel Appleton, gave $1,000 each, to be applied, at some future period, to the erection of a suitable building. These sums, together with other donations made at different times, and the excess of receipts over expenses, have been added to the fund, and the Association now holds certificates of stock to the amount of about $20,000.

The subject of connecting Literary Exercises with the Institution was first brought forward in October, 1830; but they were not permanently established until January, 1836. It was proposed, when the matter was first agitated, to set apart the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month for this purpose; but the subject met with little favor. Many regarded them as an innovation upon the objects of the Library, and urged that if undertaken they would not succeed. In 1836, however, their foundation was laid by the embodiment into the Constitution of provisions for an Elocution Class. Such a class had been formed some time previous as a distinct organization; and, at its weekly meetings during the winter months, questions were discussed, original compositions read, and selections recited for improvement in declamation. Occasionally, the exercises were varied by the delivery, by some one of the members, of a written lecture. In the next year, they took the general form, which is embodied in the present By-Laws, consisting alternately of debate, composition, and declamation.

Whatever may have been the misgivings of our predecessors a generation ago, the weight of evidence now proves conclusively, that no more judicious variation from the original plan has ever been adopted; and the Literary Exercises are justly regarded as a most interesting and valuable means of improvement.

In August, 1835, a Committee was appointed to inquire into the expediency of celebrating the Fifteenth Anniversary by an Address and a supper. They subsequently reported, that they deemed it expedient and proper that an Address should be delivered, but discountenanced the supper. One of their resolutions cannot but be commended for its good sense, and just views of the objects of the Institution: "Resolved, That to celebrate our annual meetings by public entertainments is contrary to the intention of the founders of the Association, and, aside from the bad effects which it may have on its individual members, — and more especially the younger portion, — will strike a blow on its future prosperity in the minds of the mercantile community (to whose assistance we look in hours of adversity), from which it may never recover." The recommendations of the Committee were approved of; but no member could be found willing to deliver the Address. The next year, however, Mr. G. W. Tyler, an honorary member, delivered an Address; and the Anniversaries have since been regularly celebrated.

They have often been occasions of much interest. That in 1838 — when the Hon. Edward Everett, then Governor of Massachusetts, delivered a felicitous and appropriate Address; and Mr. James T. Fields, then an active and prominent member, a spirited Poem — was particularly brilliant. It was celebrated in the Odeon, which was filled with an intelligent and fashionable audience, the members occupying the body of the house.

Among the distinguished orators who have at different times delivered these Anniversary Addresses, are Hon. Daniel Webster, Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, Hon. Rufus Choate, Hon. Geo. S. Hillard, Hon. Horace Mann, and others of eminence in letters and statesmanship; while the wit and pathos of Holmes and Saxe and Fields have never shone more brilliantly than as poets before the Mercantile Library Association.

In 1835, also, the practicability of establishing a course of public lectures was first discussed, but decided to be inexpedient. In 1838, an arrangement was entered into with J. Silk Buckingham, Esq., of England, to deliver a course of eight Lectures on Egypt.

Hosted by Google

These proved quite successful, and were the means of adding one hundred and twenty-four new members; though, as Lectures, they were of no pecuniary income to the Association. In 1843, the present plan was adopted; and, in October of the same year, a course was delivered at the Odeon, which resulted in a profit of $325.83. The Annual Report of the Directors, prepared by Mr. Elliott C. Cowdin, the chief originator of the scheme, stated that "the enterprise had succeeded beyond the expectation of its most zealous advocates." These courses of Lectures have been continued from year to year, and have conduced, in an eminent degree, to the prosperity of the Institution. In 1851, their popularity had so increased, the number of members being about twenty-two hundred, that it was found necessary to establish a second course; an expedient which met with success, and has since been continued.

In September, 1841, a fourth removal was made, — this time to the Amory Hall Building, corner of West and Washington Streets; and in January, 1848, the Rooms at present occupied were dedicated. On both these occasions, an Address was delivered by Mr. Daniel N. Haskell; and, on the latter one, a Poem was also pronounced by Mr. S. A. Dix. An incident from Mr. Haskell's interesting Address of 1848 illustrates the strength and beauty of many of the social ties here formed: "Ten years ago last October, one of our most active and beloved members died, leaving an interesting family of sisters, with their mother, in destitute circumstances. One hundred and eight of our members came forward and raised a fund, by contributing one or two dollars each year, till the sum of five hundred dollars was paid the mother of their friend Torrey, in quarterly payments of twenty-five dollars each, for the term of five years."

The Association was incorporated in 1845. An attempt to procure a charter was first made in 1837, but was not then pressed forward with much zeal; and the petitioners had leave to withdraw. In 1845, by the advice of the Hon. William Sturgis, the subject was again taken up; and an Act of Incorporation, drafted by Chas. G. Loring, Esq., and presented by the venerable Edmund Dwight, received the signature of the Governor. The good offices, in this connection, of the Hon. Peleg W. Chandler, then Chairman of the Committee on Education, received a grateful acknowledgment.

Ten years after its formation, the Library contained eighteen hundred and forty-six volumes; and, in 1833, the number was twenty-three hundred and seventy-eight. In 1844, the Association became again indebted to its generous and wise patrons, Messrs. Wm. Sturgis, Abbott Lawrence, Nathan Appleton, William Appleton, John P. Cushing, John Bryant, David Sears, William Lawrence, Robert G. Shaw, and Amos Lawrence, who each subscribed $100, to be expended in the purchase of books. This was followed by the munificent donation of $500, from the late Hon. Daniel Webster, in behalf of the Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge, of which he was President, to be invested in the same manner. These sums were judiciously expended, and in 1848 the Library contained about six thousand volumes. Since that time, by means of increased resources, the income from the fund, and the profits of the lectures, large additions have been made. The Library now contains sixteen thousand volumes; and the Association has about two thousand members. The circulation of books, especially within the last few years, has been larger probably than that of any similar library in the country. In 1853, it reached eighty-one thousand volumes.

The design of making the Reading-Room an attractive place of resort, has been steadily kept in view. At its very commencement, it received, gratis, the leading Boston newspapers; and these generous contributions have been continued to the present time. Now the principal Reviews and Periodicals, and more than a hundred Newspapers, daily invite the perusal of its members.

In December, 1850, the Rooms were opened from one to ten o'clock, P.M., instead of during the evening only, as had hitherto been the practice; and the services of a permanent Librarian were secured. In July, 1852, the Reading-Room was made accessible during the entire day and evening.

The subject of a new building, owned by and devoted to the purposes of the Association, with ample accommodations for its various requirements, has for many years engaged the attention of its members.

Hosted by Google

Annual Reports, so far back as 1830, with scarce an exception, have not failed to allude to this growing necessity. The burden of complaint has been, and is, inconvenient and insufficient rooms.

As already stated, in 1846 Hon. Thomas H. Perkins gave $2500, and eight other generous men gave $8000, for this purpose. In 1851, it was made the subject of a special meeting. The result was the appointment of a Committee, to solicit further aid for this object. They reported, in March, 1853, that the sum of $9,050 had been subscribed through their solicitation, upon the condition, on the part of several of the donors, that $15,000 be raised; this sum, in addition to the already invested funds, being considered a necessary building capital. By the Annual Report for the year ending in April last, it appeared that the whole amount subscribed reached the sum of $9,600. The names of the gentlemen who have subscribed so liberally in aid of this project may be found by reference to the Annual Reports. The Committee acknowledged their indebtedness to Hon. Nathan Appleton, Hon. William Appleton, and Hon. Abbott Lawrence, "who are not only among the largest contributors of money, but have made personal application to gentlemen of their acquaintance in aid of the object."

From the important influence which this Association is exerting on the future commercial character of our city, and from the proverbial liberality of Boston merchants, when they come to appreciate the merits of a noble object, it cannot be that the want of proper accommodations should much longer circumscribe the usefulness of our Institution.

Art. XII.
